- RESEARCH INTERESTS Digital health analytics, Preventive care analytics, Healthcare information systems, Network science, Statistical machine learning.
- DISSERTATION Title: Statistical machine learning methods for preventive care and digital health analytics
Committee: Dr Sudha Ram (Chair), Dr Sue Brown, Dr Faiz Currim, Dr Wei Chen
Summary: Preventive care and digital health are two application domains of healthcare analytics. Preventive care analytics is the science of extracting population-level insights from electronic health records to assist preventive care policies. On the other hand, digital health analytics focuses on enhancing individual wellbeing via continuous tracking of health indicators. With rapid development in healthcare big data and sensor technologies, research in these two areas is increasing in importance and complexity. Innovative methods are required to analyze the complex data generated from such systems. My research focuses on addressing the challenges in preventive care and digital health analytics using novel statistical machine learning methods. I use a combination of statistics, network analysis, quantitative modeling and machine learning approaches to develop analytical methods for addressing specific research questions.
